OPEC pressures Saudis on oil price

GENEVA (Reuter). — Sandi Arabia came under intense pressure from fellow oil exporters yesterday to accept a sharp increase in the official price of oil in return for the restoration of orderly world market conditions.

Standing virtually alone at the start of the regular mid-year price-fixing meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.
Saudi Arabian Of Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told reporters he would not accept a $19 price tag on the stan-dard barrel of OPEC crude. The majority of OPEC's 13 states want to fix the official price of a barrel at $20, which they consider close to the real value of their oil on world markets. This was backed up hy a study prepared by OFEC economists that said orderly off market conditions would not return at a lower figure, OPEC sources

OPEC price restrictions were lifted three months ago.

At gesterday's two-hour opening session, ministers outlined the views of their countries, with most pressing for a return to a mandatory OPEC price which would restore the organization's control over world ratios, delegates said. The OPEC decision on new prices is expected to be announced just prior to the opening of the Tokyo summit of leading industrialized countries.

Yemeni failed to respond, however, keeping allent through most of the morning session, they sided.

Delegates said that during pre-conference consultations, in which the Saudis had also remained mostly silent, en overwhelming majority emerged in favour of the $30 level, which would put the official price 38 per bent above the April 1 fixing. But many members appeared will-ing to compromise at around $18.50 a berret which would raise prices by almost 50 per cent above force six months ago:

of lowering production as a means of affecting prices were not taken too seriously by delegates, who saw them as bargaining counters few states would be willing to use. Saudi Arabia, which has always preached price moderation within OPEC to avoid charges of undermining the world economy and to protect its huge investments in vestern states, has said it might lift its current ceiling on oil production, allowing the export of an extra one million barrels a day of crude oil. This was likely to ease the pressure that has forced prices above $30 in the free spot market and allowed some oil exporters to charge up to $21 a barrel for oils similar to the OPEC marker — Saudi Arabia's

Third round of autonomy talks ends cordially

Post Diplomatic Correspondent HERZLIYA. — The third round of the autonomy talks ended here yesterday in an atmosphere of extreme conviviality, but without much tangible progress. Israel and Egypt agreed to study each other's proposals on how to proceed and to present their comments and reactions at the next cession, in Alexandria on July 5-6.

The Egyptian side is still pressing for a talks agenda that would cxpress the broad political objectives of the autonomy. their behalf and persuade the government to solve the problem.

Representatives of the farmers' organizations said last night that they are no longer interested in promises from the Knesset Finance Committee. They now want an explicit commitment from Finance Minister Simha Ehrlich to issue orders that would make home-grown poultry cheaper in comparison with the imported beef. They want this commitment before next Sunday, when the committee is due to meet again to consider their grievances.

Most of the efforts being made yesterday evening to avert the sanctions were at the initiative of members of the committee, notably MK Yigal Cohen-Orgad.

THIRD ROUND OF TALKS

In regard to the latter, it is felt that

This is the second time that the chief of staff, who has displayed extremsly high standards in regard to discipline in the army (including stiff sentences for breaches), has shown extreme laxity in cases involving court declelons on the behaviour of soldiers

The first instancs involved civil guardsman Ylsrael Lederman, sentenced in December 1978 to 20 years for murdering an East Jarusalam man the day after terrorists killed a fellow elvil guardsman at the same spot. The military appeals court cut Lederman's sentence to 10 years, but in April Eltan unilaterally reduced it to three years.

In the present case, which involved an officer early in the Litani operation, the chief of staff again cut the sentence despits the carrying out of due judicial process and the deel-sion of the appeal court. As a result of the reduction, the officer bas only a few months remaining of his sentence to serve.

Post Knesset Reporter

The state has filed a criminal complaint against "Ha'olam Hazeh" on a charge of inciting the armed forces to rehellion. This was revealed in the Knesset yesterday by the editor of the weekly, Uri Avnery (Sheli).

Speaking on a bill to amend the Courts Law, Avnery said that the grounds for the complaint, which was filed this week, was a reader's letter published in the magazine. In the letter a reserve soldier wrote that reservists find themselves in a conflict with their conscience when they are required to serve in the "occupled territories."

end in failure. It was noted iast night however, that Shaka had consistently ignored standing orders banning political meetings and demonstrations on the West Bank. In March he was one of a group of Arab mayors who tried to taks food into Halhoul which was under curfew. And he was the only West Bank mayor to attend a recent meeting at the Arab Graduate Cinb in East Jerusalem, ealied to discuss the continued closure of a number of West Bank schools and colleges. One important aspect of putting Shaka on tra trial is that if found gullty of an offence deemed a 'disgrace'' under Jordanian law, he could be considered diequalified from bolding the post of mayor. This happened last year to the mayor of Beit Jala, who was convicted of such an offence and subsequently lost his

But observers noted last night that it would not be easy to prove Shaka was guilty of such a crime. They also expressed concern that a prolonged trial might well turn into an oppor-tunity for more disorder and dsmonstrations of the kind the military government hoped to pre-vent on the West Bank.

A spokesman for the military government last night declined to elaborate on the imminent trial.

immunity stalled until fall

Knesset members yesterday expressed apprehension that granting tax and custome exemption to foreign workers who will be building the Negev airfields would create a massive hlack market and undermine public morality.

They were speaking in the debate on a hill precented by Deputy Finance Minister Yehezkel Flomin, entitled ''Tax Exemption Law (Agreement to Build Airfields)." The bill passed its first reading, and was referred to the Finance Committee hy a vote of 28-14.

Flomin anticipated the fear that the exemption might lead to smuggling and a hlack market. In his opening remarks, Flomin promised that the Treasury would take all steps necessary to prevent ahuse of the exemption. U.S. authoritiee have promised full cooperation in this matter, he said. In the Camp David agreements, Israel undertook to exempt from various taxes the U.S. government and its workers who were employed in the implementations of the agreement. But legislation was needed to give the agreement legal validity. Employees of contractors will be exempt from duties on the import of goods for their own homes on personal property. U.S. government employees will, in addition, enjoy the same exemption from income tax and indirect taxes as its granted to employees of the U.S. ambassy and consulates.

Galilee Arab leaders claim land theft move to build 29 lookouts in the Galilee to prevent Arah encroach-ment on state-owned land.

By JOSHUA BRILLIANT Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A group of local Arab notables charged yesterday that the government was trying to rob Galilee Arabs of their land under the pretext of developing the area. Attorney Mohammed Miari of Haifa told a press conference that Arabs, who comprise 48 per cent of Gaillee's population, own 300,000 of the 3,500,000 dunams there. Nicaragua rebels 'execute' supporters of Somoza MANAGUA. — Sandinista guerrillas said yesterday they had "executed" 180 supporters of President Anastasio Somoza during the last two weeks in the rebel-controlled city of Matagalpe.

The Nicaraguan government radio said Netional Guard troops have "cleaned up" the eastern Managuan neighbourhoods that have been beld by the guarrillas and announced the guard was ending military operations after three days of heavy fighting.

But the Sandinistas sald that they are still bolding the area and eye-witnesses sald the guerrillas continued to bold positions to barricades and bunkers. The International Red Cross said It would send convoys with food and madicine from today to the Sandinista-beld northern cities of Leon, Esteli and Matagaipa. National Guard troops blocked a similar Red Cross relief mission on Monday for eastern Managua, where three straight devs of concentrated eerial bombardment bas failed to dislodge entrenched guerrillas. Sandinista radio communications indicated the rabeis were considering setting up a provisional government in Leon, Nicaragua's send largest city. But some regional commanders worried that Guard air superiority could endanger their five-member "Government of Nationei Reconstruction" if it moved from its current haven across the border in Costa Rica.

The Sandinistas' plan to set up a capital in Rivas appeared to have been scrapped for now, because the offensive to capture the sourthern city has stalled.

Besides Leon, Sandinistas on Monday held Masaya, Matagalpa, Diriamba, a dozen northern towns along the Honduras border, and a five-km. strip along the Sapoa-Penas Blancas line between the Pacific Ocean and Lake Nicaragua, just north of the Costa Rican border.

Brazil on Monday broke dipiomatic and commercial reletions with Somoea's government; joining Mexico, Costa Rica, Panama, Ecuador and Grenada, all members of the Organization of American States. Peru'e foreign minister said on Monday his country was seriously considering breaking relations with Somoza, and that he knew of other Latin American nations considering the same thing. though he did not name them.

The five members of the San-dinistas' provisional "Government of National Reconstruction" are due to arrive in Panama City today on their first official state visit. A presidential press release published on Monday said the provisional government, eppointed on June 18, bad been invlied by Preeldent Aristides Royo. (UPI, AP)

'Jack the Ripper' taunts British police with tape

WAKEFIELD, England (UPI). — "I'm not quite sure when I will Police yesterday released" a sneer- strike again but it will be definitely ing, taunting tape recording by the "Yorkshire Ripper" in which the mass murderer outlined plans to kill his 12th victim — a prostitute, like most of the others — and boasted, "I should be in the Book of Records."

Assistant chief constable George Oldfield, who has masterminded the hunt for the killer for almost four years, appealed for public belp in recognizing the voice. 'Someone, somewhere, must know this man," be said. The killer, Oldfield theorizes, is from near the northeast port of Sunderland. He is aged 80 to 50 and is "strong, mad and clever." He is England's most vicious mass murderer since Jack the Ripper terrorized the gaslit London of the 1880s, killing and mutilating at least eix prostitutes. The killer has already claimed 11 victims since October 1975. He etabs and slashes all his victims, reportedly hideously mutilating their bodies.

Ntoe were prostitutes and police theorize be mistook the other two both women of good repute - for prostitutes as well.

"I believe we have now got the break we bave been waiting for." Oldfield said as he played the cassette at West Yorkshire police headquarters.

In the brief tape, addressed to Oldfield, the sneering voice says, "I'm Jack (the ripper). I see you are still having no luck catching me.

"I have the greatest respect for you, George, but Lord, you are no nearer catching me now than four years ago when I started ...

sometime this year, maybe September or October. Even econer where, maybe Manchester. I like it there, there's plenty of them knocking about. They never learn, do they, George? I bet yoo've warned them but they never listen. At the rate I'm going, I should be in the Book of Records. I think its 11 up to now isn't it? Well, I'll keep on going for quite a while yet.

"I can't see myself being nicked just yet. Even if you do get near I'll probably top (hang) myself first. Well, it's been nice talking to you George. Jack the Ripper."

Oldfield said the police profile is of a man who probably "bad something to do with engineering and is almost certainly living among us. There must be something in his background to give him this battred of women of the streets. It could be that he's caught VD or he might have married someone and later found out sbe was a prostitute. Perhaps his mother was one."

FROM:

In the three months since the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty, several key Middle East experts at the State Department have come to agree with that assessment. These officials are privately upset hy the Carter Administration'e reaffirmed commitment to Israel, in a March 26 U.S.-Israeli memorandum of agreement, not to recognize or negotiate with the PLO until that organization first accepts UN. Security Council resolution 242, as well as Irael'e right to exist. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. assured Israel that the U.S. would continue to honour that commitment, first made as part of the 1975

In recent weeks, however, State Department officials involved in carrying out that decision have been waging a determined bureaucratic battle to try to move away from it. Most of the arguments have been made behind closed doors, but some manifactations have curfaced

According to well-placed U.S. officials, the controversy is expected to intensify in the coming weeks, largely because of a new aggressive PLO policy, which includes some "positive diplomacy" designed to suggest that the PLO may be interested in a peaceful resolution of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Thus, despite the U.S. commitment to Israel, there appears to be a reversion back to the early approach of the Carter Administration toward the PLO, when there was an unofficial dialogue between Washington and the PLO.

Using several intermediaries, the Carter Administration has sought to win PLO moderation. Specifically, administration officials urged the PLO to accept Resolution 242 so that an open dialogue could begin. But the PLO rigidly refused to do anything that might indicate recognition of Israel'e right to exist. U.S. overtures largely ended after President Sadat went to Jerusalem in November 1977.

But since the signing of the peace treaty on March 26, there have been several developments suggesting that the earlier policy may once again be on the ascent. It is hard to believe that the administration could blatantly abrogate the U.S. commitment to Israel. That would be credibility would be destroyed.

YET LOW and mid-level bureaucrats, tacitly supported by key superiors, are convinced that the U.S. erred in offering that commitment to Israel in 1975 and in reaffirming it last March. To them, the PLO is a fact of life in the Middle East. The U.S., they believe, should

State Harold Saunders and legal adviser Herbert Hansell testified before a House foreign affairs subcommittee. Answering questions from Rep. Paul Findley (Rep. Illinois), probably the most ardent PLO advocate in Congress since Sen. and Saunders eaid that the U.S. could "legally" have contacts with the PLO under the terms of the 1975 U.S.-Israeli memorandum of agreement. That document said the U.S. could not 'recognize or negotiate' with the PLO. It did not say anything about "communicating" with the

PLO, according to the two State

Department officiale. Their testimony disturbed several pro-

Israel memhers of the panel.

Around the same time, the State Department granted an entry visa to Shafik El-Hout, the director of the PLO's Beirut office, to lecture at several U.S. universities. The decision was a clear signal to the PLO that Washington was interested in maintaining a dialogue — if only the PLO would respond with some

While El-Hout was in Washington, be attended a reception hosted by the Syrian embassy on the oceasion of Syria's independence day. Saunders and William Quandt, then the Middle East staffer on the National Security Council, attended the reception, us ing Preeldent Carter's polite handshake with a PLO official at a UN reception two years ago as a precedent. Saunders and Quandt chook hands and chatted briefly with 图-Hout.

· Another PLO man, Sayeed Kamei, the head of the Cairo office. indicated that he too wanted to enter the U.S. in May. But after State Department officials floated the idea with a few congressmen, word of the visit leaked to the press. There was an uproar, and the visa application was quietly withdrawn.

All this, of course, followed President Carter's assertion during an intervisw with Egyptian television at the time of the treaty signing that the U.S. would "immediately" begin dealing with the PLO if that organization would just meet America'e minimal conditions.

But the PLO has not yet responded to these U.S. signals. Some State Department officiale aré eneouraged hy the PLO'e indirect statements, such as those given by Yasser Arafat to Rep. Findley in Belrut. They are not enough, however, to justify a public shift in the U.S. stance. But flirting with the PLO goee on.

There is a strong belief in the State Department that, unless the PLO can eventually he hrought around to accept the U.S.-sponsored peace negotiations, the progress already achieved may be in jeopardy. The idsological rigidity, however, will prohably continue to prevent that organization from meeting 'America's conditions, at least in the near future.

Meanwhile, key officials here want to continue their campaign to try to strengthen the "moderates" within

And they suspect that the U.S. abandoned the joint Soviet-American ap-

In fact, there is something of a contradiction between Soviet suspicion of America's motives in helping Sadat and Prime Minister Menahem Begin get together and their pleasure at the trouble this has eaused among America'e old Arab friends. The Russians explain this by saying that "the Americans mis-calculated."

· For their part, they insist that Israel'e refusal to recognize the PLO is the major obstacle to a proper settlement. The PLO's refusal to recognize Israel, on the other hand, le not seen by Ruseiane as an obstacle. This is because "Palestine is, in fact, ready to coexist with

THE RUSSIANS still say it would be a matter of putting the cart before the horse to set PLO recognition of Israei as a pre-condition for negotiations. "Why should the Palestinians admit Israel'e rights if Israel won't admit the rights of Palestine, which does not yet even have a state?"

To the suggestion that PLO recognition would make the Israelis feel more escure about negotiating, one Russian replied, "Sadat's visit to Jerusalem didn't seem to make Israelis feel more secure. In fact, it made matters worse."

For all the criticism, the Middle East presents Moscow with almost as many problems as it does Washington. The Russians' chief advantage at this moment is that they ean simply look disapproving without have to do very much. (Observer Foreign News Service) promise to pull the American troops out, however, the South Korean government was Public Enemy Number One around Washington. The "Koreagate" seandal, with almost weekly revelations of official South Korean bribes to members of the U.S. Congress, was at its height. Nobody was prepared to voics an opinion that aounded as if it might have been paid for by Seoul. Moreover, Carter's human rights campaigning inevitably included at-tacks on South Korea's authoritarian political ayatem. As Riebard Holbrooke, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian Affairs, frankly admitted on a visit to Seoul three months ago: "I think 1977-78 was as difficult a period between treaty allies as could be imagined."

But Holbrooke added that the U.S.-Korean relationship has been "on an ascending curve over the last few months," which is certainly true. And no wonder, for in mid-February Carter announced that he was suspending further U.S. troop withdrawals (only a few thousands have so far left) pending new in-telligence reports on the balance of forces in the Korean peninsula. The suspension is likely to be permanent.

at least the excuse for it — was a new U.S. intelligence assessment which suggested that North Korean military strength had previously been underestimated by as much as 25 to 30 per cent. Since sven on previous estimates the North Koreans outnumbered the South two-to-one in tanks and combat aircraft, this was externely disturbing news if correct.

There were other powerful reasons also arguing against the policy of withdrawal, 'Koreagate' is now vir-tually forgotten, and South Korea once again has a great many friends in Congress. Carter will heed their votes to gain ratification of the SALT treaty.

More importantly, there was the queetlon of timing. The U.S. Seoul estimated to be the most critical period: the last few years in which North Korea's military superiority would give them the option of launching an attack. If the withdrawal did not begin until 1982-83, on the other hand, South Korea would by then have become such a major industrial power that North Korean leader Kim Il Sung would not dare to invade it.

This is the goal the South Korean regime has been working for ever since President Park seized power in 1961. At that time, the country's GNP was a tiny $2b.; last year it was $56b. Then South Korea was an lmpoverished agricultural backwater with a smaller economy than the traditionally industrial North, despite having twice the North's population. Now the South Korean GNP is four or five timee bigger than the

This is precisely the result that President Park has been eeeking in his successful economie race against the North Koreans. It me within another five to seven years there will at last be a military balance between the forces of North eeeded Chris Evert Lloyd took just 56 minutes to outplay Marita Redondo 6-4. 6-2 yesterday and qualify for the second round of the Wimbledon women'e singles.

Evert Lloyd was far from her best in the first set against Redondo, a 28year-old Californian.

The former Wimbledon champion took four gamee in succession to race from 1-1 to 5-1 as Redondo's ambition appeared to outweigh her con-

Martina Navratilova, the defending champion, had a 4-8, 8-2, 8-1 victory over Tanya Harford, a 20-yearnid South African, but not before she had been hustled and jostled into dropping the first set.

The blonde and rambunctious South African, playing the serve and volley game as if she knew the centre court like ber own back yard, rushed to the net like a tigress at the slightest opportunity in that set. Navratilova, watched anxiously by her mother Jana, who had been able to leave her native Czechoslovakia to watch the tournament as a special guest of the Ali England Club, took a long timn to settln down and eeemed abnormally slow-footed

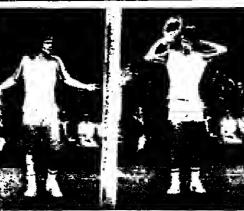

In the second set she settled down, and the turning point came in the vice break to go 4-2 up. Harford was finding it impossible to keep up her breathtaking attack, volleyed wildly out at the vital point, and from then on Navratilova was always firmly in

Britain's top runner faces possible ban

LONDON (Reuter). - Steve Ovett, Britain's must talented and controversial athlete, faces a possible ban for running in the Netherlands without permission on Sunday.

Ovett, the European 1,500 metres champion, represented Britain in an international match in West Germany on Saturday, and ran in Nijmegen the following day without the approval of the British Amsteur Athletic Board (BAAB).

BAAB secretary David Shaw said yastarday that the 28 year-old middle-distance etar had not received BAAB permission to run in the Netherlands and could face disciplinary action, including a temporary ban.

Ovett's fiercely-independent nttituds towards athletics has brought frequent brushes with officials in the past. He has also come under fire in the press recently for refusing to run for Britain in the European Cup semifinals this weekend.

If a tamperary ban is imposed, it could prevent Ovett defending his IAAF Golden Mile title in Oalo on July 17, in a race in which other invited atara include Olympic champion John Walker of New Zealand.

ITA summer programme

Tennis comes to Nazareth

By JACK LEON Post Sports Reporter

NAZARETH. - The Israel Tennis Association (ITA) is including Nazareth in its regional summer training programme for the first time. Some 500 boys and girls from eight to 12 years old have already received free lessons here during the past month.

Nazareth is one of seven locations where the ITA's sixth summer programme is being held. The programme has been greatly expanded this year. The others are; Acre; Jarusalem: Kiryat Yam, near Haifa; Nahariya; Netanya; and Moshav Yeoba, in the Western

A total of almost 3,000 youngsters will participate in the programme, which is being directed by the new national tennis coach, Ron Steele, with Etana Ya'ari as coordinator. It is bning run with the cooperation of local authorities and the Israel Tennis Centra. The centre bas also nrganized similar training programmes at its Ramet Hazharon and Jaffa courts.

In Nazareth, the programme is being held at the Terra Sancta boys' school, the only school here where tennis is included in the sports curriculum. With no proper facilities for the game available, four makeshift courte are set up by stringing nots across the playground whenever tennis in played.

Since May, pupils from 20 local schools bave been given four ons-hour group leesons by local coaches Butrus Karam, George Abuhani and Elias Jabur. Following tests con-ducted by Steele, about 250 of them bave now been selected for a further six-week training programme. Half of these children are expected to show enough promise to be taken on for formal coaching, which will continue until next spring.

Tennia was introduced to Terra Sancta two years ago by Karam, when he assumed the post of physical education teacher there. Karam, a 26-year-old Wingate alumnus, who graduated from the institute qualified as a tennis cnach, is Israel'e only fully qualified Arab coach in the sport. Abuhani, 25, also n Wingatn graduatn, is physical education instructor at the adjacent St. Joseph girls' school. Assisting them in the summer programme is Elias Jabur, 19, who has also taken a tennis course at Wingate.

Despite the chronic lack of facilities, Terra Saneta has already produced a squad of 12 promising players from the older boys. Karam lans to enter a team in the ITA's league competition naxt year. Nazareth's YMCA, which boasts two of the town's few courts, joined the competition this season to become the first Arab club in the 101-team

TEETHING AND TEETH

A DOCTOR'S NOTEBOOK / Dr. David Samson

ONE MORNING recently I saw two young patients with rather different conditions, but both their mothers thought that perhaps there was a becommon factor responsible for the the fetwo complaints in question. First Bana Shachori brought her keight-month-old daughter Dorit to see mc. The haby was baving regular nightly crying episodes of the habit-forming sort I discussed in Kenting this column not long ago. Then in Miriam Gelfer came in with Boaz, also eight months, who had an a slevated temperature coming and eight aligoing for a day or two without any Cup sopobolous cause. Examination of the child, in fact, revealed a mild ear inthe meetion, which accounted for his

What was common to both mothers was that in talking about a possible cause for their children's ipsets, cach initially asked me whether I thought that teething night be responsible. In both cases ny answer was a decisive "no." I ing abook the opportunity, however, of elling them a little about children's is a lentition and teething and made some general points about dental care in youngsters.

AOST CHILDREN'S first set of teeth, he deciduous or "milk" teeth, erupt between six months and two years of lage. Having said that, I feel it is important to point out that there is a lair bit of variation about this, an exreme example being the fact that ome children, about one in 2,000, are actually born with a tooth or two. Napoleon and Julius Caesar, for eximple, are said to have helonged to his group. Fortunately mothers inending to breast-feed such children 15 the reed not give up the idea since such a on - Twooth tends to bend in the gum while The child is at the breast, and there is no danger of being bitten.

Like many other evente of hildhood, the subject of teething has occupied the minds and writings of nedical authorities at least since the ime of Hippocrates. The symptoms and the hareatments suggested for it have Until not very long ago euch complaints as fits, fevers, recurrent nose and throat infections, bronchitis, liarrhoes and many more were while often ascribed by doctors to teething. : !: Tradition dies hard, and therefore it a perhaps not too surprising to learn "hat quite a number of these old misaken beliefs still linger on. To this lay there is still quite a bit of public nisconception about what teething an produce in a child me extent it is 8257.to under and why this should be so, since we anation for some symptom or ill-11 11 Bees affecting us or someone near to s whose occurrence is not, at first one light, understandable. Teething is iften therefore a convenient per on oleb to hang many childhood ilments.

In fact, teething probably roduces nothing but teeth — andier terhaps come transient irritability nd a temporary aversion to hard od. But that's about all.

When other not-readily explainable symptoms occur, a more satisfactory diagnosis than teething must be pursued. No treatment is usually required for teething per se although occasionally a soothing solution massaged into the gums of a particularly fretful child may prove beneficial.

WHILE ON the subject of teeth, I would like to mention a pet moan of mine. I'm often asked to examine children's throats when they are suffering from some minor injection.
Too often these daye, even in relatively young toddlers. I see evidence of a potentially much more serious disease "on the way in to the throat. I'm referring to the presence of wideepread dental caries, decay stemming from eating an excessive amount of sweets. biscuits and cakes, etc. and from neglect or poor attention to dental care and hygiene — all from an early

Such carly dental destruction in-evitably presages trouble in the near and distant future for the child, in the way of pain, gum infection and premature extraotions, of far greater significance than the immediate respiratory infection, which is so often the anxious parents' overriding concern at the time,

In particular, premature removal of "milk" teeth can affect the normal eruption, alignment and configuration of the permanent teeth. This in turn can provoke further problems when the child is older.

This is a pity, because most of the basic trouble could be prevented by encouraging sensible dietary habits in the child and explaining to him from an carly age that teeth are precious, and how to look after them accordingly. This involves a routine of regular teeth (or tooth)) brushing as soon as possible, and providing the child with a toothbrush of his own as soon as he is capable of un-derstanding its use and importance.

Regular dental checks should start ldeally between the ages of two and three, and the dentist will also be pleased to give advice on additional methods of minimizing tooth decay and ensuring healthy teeth, such as painting the teeth with a fluoridecontaining solution or taking fluoride tablete when that chemical is deficient in the local water supply. Both these methods have been shown to be of value in reducing tooth decay in children, and concerned parents will want to investigate

I make it standard practice if I meet a young child in the course of a house call to ask him to show me his toothbrush 'and' to' tell 'me' how 'and" when be uses it. The opportunity is taken there and then to rectify any shortcomings. This, some of you may say, is more the perogative of a dentist, but then dentists, unlike family doctors, don't make their possible value for their own housecalls. Dr. Samson regrets that he is unable to enter into any private cordence in connection with this column. Readers' comments. however, may be used as a basis for future articles in the series.

A tough game

George Levinrew

H. W. KELSEY, one of the most prolific British bridge writers, uses a very interesting format in "The Tough Game," (London. Faber & Faber, 1979, 190 pp., £5.25). Sixty-four challenging deals in a team of four match are presented to the reader, 42 as declarer and 22 as defender. Your plan of play is compared with that at the replay table. with likely results attributed to the second table. East set of eight deals is fully analyzed. If you give the right answer to the problems about half the time, you may expect to win

The following le one example: (deal no. 9) E-W Vul: Dealer North

You lead the diamond jack, won hy the ace in dummy. North plays the three and East the four. Declarer plays the A K Q of hearts and throws you in with the jack. He discards diamonds from dummy while North follows once and discards three diamonde including the king. You switch to the spade king, North plays the five, East wins with the ace and continues with the spade jack to your queen. North discards the club seven. How do you continue? Here is the picture you now bave of declarer'e last six cards:

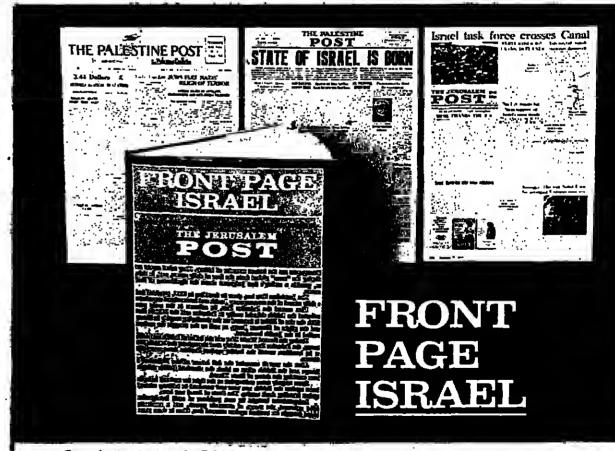

NXXX

You wonder about the club ace. North probably does not have it, but if he does your side must win two cluh tricks. The cluh seven was prohably meant to advise you that North held a club stopper, possibly the queen. If he has the queen, it is dangerous to lead a high epade now. You will subsequently win a trick with the cluh king and be forced to lead a epade to the nine in dummy. Declarer will discard a club on the spade won in dummy, and declarer will win your partner'e queen through a finesse.

Only an unusual play will bring you victory. After winning with the spade queen you must lead a low spade to dummy'e 9-7. Then, when you win a olub with the king, you will have a safe exit with the high spade and your partner will win a club with his queen. Here was the full hand;

Economist reveals cure for inflation

By DIANA LERNER

WORLD FAMOUS economist Ahba
P. Lerner, who served as economic adviser to David Ben-Gurion from 1958 to 1955 and subsequently to then Finance Minieter Levi Eshkoi claims he has a cure for inflation.
The hearded, white-haired

The hearded, white-haired American professor, who established the Department of Economics at Tel Aviv University last week, opened the conference on "Development in an Inflationary World," sponsored by the University's Pinchas Sapir Centre for Development with a unique theory on fighting inflation.

It can be cured by making it too expensive to raise prices, Lerner told his audience of professors, experts and advisere to financial institutions, here and abroad.

How? By a system of credits that the Government accorde to businessee on basis of their standing, which enables a firm to buy a permit to raise its prices from a firm lowering prices in exchange for another benefit. The cystem would be administered by the Government and prices would be free to move up and down in relation to demand.

Crazy? Perhaps, the professor admits, but it might work if properly developed. Toward this snd, Lerner is meeting a fellow economist in Oxford to develop the theory. However, most participants in the conference, he eays, found the theory interesting but questioned its applicability to Israel.

Born in Bessarabia, and raised in London's East End, the former yeshivs student was earning his livelihood as a hat maker and studying for a high school diploma at night when teachers discovered their 26-year-old student was outstanding. They obtained a scholarship for him at the London School of Economice where he later became one of the most prestiglous instructors, but a scholarship to an American University influenced him to leave for what became a permanent etay in the U.S.

A colleague giving a course in mental development to help students increase their powers of concentration accepted Ahba Lerner into an experiment on alertneee when reading boring material. Nothing he gave him, however, even a book on hi-metalism, did the young man find other than fascinating. It was the same with anything he did, Lerner reports, even while sewing hats, he always found a new way to eew the seams around the border.

Perhaps it is this flexibility of mind that enabled him later to twist ideae thie way and that, hie colleagues say about him.

Now a distinguished professor at Florida State University, Lerner, 74, enchants students with his quick mind, gift for simple explanations of complex prohiems and readiness to listen to a controversial point of view. While at the Israei Treasury, he hold daily cominars with students at the Kaplan School to hear their views, often, he chuckles, far hetter than his own.

One of the most popular teachers at any university at which he has taught, Lerner has never heen known to raise his voice or lose his temper. His philosophy: the moment you feel yourself getting angry, turn off, just snap the thought and think of something else.

The amiable scholar is always ready to take on an argument, even a vicious attack, and frequently ends up winning over the attacker as an ardent devotee. Several years ago, he received an angry letter from an irate student at Queens College, in New York, taking lasue with a magazine article on inflation that Ahba Lerner had written. From California, where he was then teaching, he wrote the student that he expected to be in New York chortly and would be glad to discuss the ideas with him. However, on arriving in New York, the absent-minded professor found he had misplaced the student's name and address.

He called up Queens College, identified himself and asked whether the secretary of the economics department would read him the names of all the students in the macro-economics elass. Hearing the inquirer was the famous economist, the eccretary readily complied. When she came to the name that he recognized as that of his correspondent, Lerner asked whether he had a class that day.

"No," the eccretary replied, hut the etudent was holding a symposium. "On what?" the professor

On: "A Conscientious Objection to Prof. Ahba P. Lerner'e Views on Curing Inflation."

'Please tell the student I will be there and would like to meet him." A long subway ride later, Ahha Lerner was in Queens. When he entered the debating hall, it was packed with an overflow crowd. Evidently word had got round that the object of attack was going to he present at the symposium.

and the state of t

The discussion hegan and Lerner, like a grandmaster at simultaneous chess games, consecutively punctured one argument after another. At this end of the dehate, a grey-haired man walked up to him, introduced himself as the president of the university and offered Lerner a position as a visiting professor. It was a position he held at Queens and the City University (CUNY) for four

Lerner is always ready to participate in a meeting of the minds.

Notwithstanding severe criticism, he has twice accepted invitations to take part in intellectual conferences sponsored hy the Rev. Moon, who has been denounced for defecting Jewish youth from Judaism hy prainwashing them to take the severe construction.

hrainwashing them to join his cult.

Lerner justifies his accepting the free trip to the conference, and honorarium because Rev. Moon etates his objectivee as pcacc, friendship and understanding. The conference, devoted to finding a union between science and religion, with sections on physical science, social science, philocophy and religion, hrought together even Nohel prize winners.

A memher of the prestigious National Academy of Science, which numbers 1,200 scientists, and only 200 economists, he is also President of the American Association for Rational Alternatives, a group which fights reverse discrimination in favour of ethnic minorities.

Lerner is on intimate terms with some of the great names in economics and scholarship on both continents. These include British lahour leader Harold Laski, diplomat-economist John Gailbreth, one of his students at the London School of Economics, and the roster of famous economists who are participating in a Festschrift in his honour, to be published at the end of the year. They include Nohel Prize winner Paul Samuelson and Milton Friedman, with whose Ideas on Israel's economy he says he general ly agrees.

But Lerner is proudest of the generation of economists he has trained in Israel, the most distinguished among them. Haim Ben Shaehar, Precident of Tel Aviv University and ec-author with Lerner of a book on Economic Efficiency and its Application in Israel.

Lerner keeps in touch with some of his students to exchange views. He tells of an Interesting encounter that David Rockefeller, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank, had with Preeident Sadat in 1974. Rockefeller asked Sadat what he thought of the Idea of opening a branch of Chase Manhattan in Tel Aviv and also in Cairo, expecting, he confided to Ahha Lerner, to be thrown out of the room. Instead, much to his surprise, the Egyptian president paused, and remarked: "It'e not yet time."

Sick fund to 'collapse' without state aid

By MACABEE DEAN Jerusalem Post reporter

TEL AVIV. — Unless Kupat Holim gete an immediate and massive transfusion of promised governmental funds, the services of the sick fund which serves 30 per cent of all Israelis will collapse within one month.

"We don't see a possibility of paying our 29,000 workers — medical and eervice workers alike — their July salaries at the beginning of August," Profeecor Haim Doron, medical director of Kupat Holim, declared yesterday, adding "We simply cannot tap alternative sources of funds. The time is shortly before midnight. In one month, according to a decision taken today, the central committee of Kupat Holim will submit its collective resignation. The consequence will be that the government will be responsible for the chaos that will result".

Dr. Doron went on to accuse the authorities, especially the Health Ministry, "of deliberately side-stepping all efforts to eit down with Kupat Holim representatives and reach an agreement on the exact date when the government would hand over the funds it had Dvora Ganini-Eiad. Heaith Ministry spokesman, however, had a different version of why the ministry was withholding promised payments: "The Knesset has not yet approved the current budget. Kupat Holim is not the only one not receiving promised help. Also hard hit are all the government hospitals and other health organizations, such as the Hadaceah Medicai centre.

Shaare Zedek, and others."
Dr. Doron eharged that not only did the ministry owe IL700m. for the 1978/79 fiscal year on account of wage differentials which It had promised to pay, but that Kupat Holim still had not yet eeen "one agora" of the IL2.5b. it had promised for the estimated IL14h. hudget for 1979/80.

"Of this IL2.5b., IL1.3h is for wage differentials which we agreed to pay at the request of the authorities on the express understanding that the ministry would find funds to cover these wage hikee".

Dr. Doron said the ministry was eystematically reducing, year after year, its share in the hudget of the sick fund. "Up to two years ago, the (Alignment) government used to pay 30 per cent of our budget, Last year it (the Likud) reduced this percentage to 22 per cent, and now the promised sum — which is not being paid — is down to 18 per cent".

Washington Post News Service PARIS. — Three years after writing a set of guidelines for government to deal with multi-national corporations, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) added just one substantive amendment last week and renewed the guidelines for five more years.

EXPRESSION OF REGRET AND PUBLIC STATEMENT

We are deeply grieved by the tragic death of Mrs. Tamar Haliba, as a result of the explosion of a family size bottle of aerated lemonade, and offer condolences to the bereaved family.

The circumstances of the accident, which occurred in the lobby of her apartment building, are still being investigated.

Accidents involving bottles of this type occur with the bottles of all soft drink producers in Israel,* all the bottles being manufactured by the same company — Tempo Combined Enterprise Yeroham Ltd. All the bottles meet the requirements of the Israel standard.

The explosion of bottles is not confined to Israel — it happens in all countries. In 1977, more than 155,000 people in the U.S.A. were injured by exploding bottles — a national average higher than that applying in Israel. Investigation of these accidents in Israel and abroad has shown that a considerable number are caused by the person concerned mishandling the glass bottle. As the largest manufacturer of family size bottles in Israel, we are very aware of this problem, and are just as concerned as the public. In fact, we have sought a solution to this problem for the last 3 years, and have spared neither means nor effort in this connection.

We have also looked for a solution to the problem abroad, and found that, in Japan, a revolutionary process has recently been developed for the application of a protective coating to glass bottles. Following this development, the Japanese government introduced legislation forbidding the sale of family size bottles without the protective coating. We would welcome such a law in Israel, and will be the first to comply with it. We will also be willing to make available the knowledge we have acquired to other plants.

This revolutionary process is used to cover glass bottles with a protective plastic coating, and this prevents the scattering of glass splinters if a bottle breaks, thus protecting members of the public from injury.

Tempo has acquired the necessary know-how, and has erected a special plant to coat bottles, in order to protect the public. IL40m. has been invested in this plant. The plant has already been run in, and is now working 3 shifts a day and producing its maximum output. Beverages are already being sold in these coated bottles. We are now making every effort to replace the regular bottles with coated ones, in the shortest possible time.

Tempo Management

* A survey published in "Ma Kedai," the journal of the Israel Consumers' Council, records bottle explosions involved 31 Tempo bottles, 12 Crystal bottles, 7 Coca-Cola bottles and 4 Schweppes bottles. Tempo has 60-70% of the market, and the correspondingly high number of exploding Tempo bottles is therefore understandable.

Stocks mixed, bonds down in heavy trading

TEL AVIV. - The share market took a breather as prices turned mixed yesterday. However, turnovers rose markedly as IL204m, was traded in shares and IL75m. in the bond market.

Index-linked bonds continued to be soft as prices moved lower by as much as 1 per cent. The public appears to be somewhat confused about interpretations of what the recently introduced price freezs will mean to the economy. The government has taken the position that the price freeze is antiinflationary, while the Bank of Israel has predicted that the move will only result in even greater inflation.

The coet of freezing prices of basic foodstuffs has been initially estimated at IL7b. Should all or part of this sum, which will be paid to growers, reach the consumer level it will cause prices to go higher, according to the governor of the Bank of Israel.

The commercial bank ecctor was not affected by the generally mixed pattern and prices continued to rise. Leumi was up by four in beavy trading. FIBI gained six, and DB was moved up by three.

Union Bank rose by eight and Hapoalim by two. General Bank edged higher by one point.

Stock exchange showed decline in real terms

By JOSEPH MORGENSTERN . Jerusalem Post Finance Reporter TEL AVIV. - Dr. Meir Heth, chairman of the board of the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange, yeeterday pointed out that though there was a large nominal rise in trading activity in 1978, in real terme there was actually a decline.

This was explained by the record activity and rises in prices in 1977, which was followed by the stock market break of December of that year, be told the board's annual meeting.

"We have definitely learned in 1978 that as the market is active and prices are rising more new issues are brought to the market and the reverse is also true." He favoured spreading new issues over an extended period rather than having them come to the market one after

As a result of the above trend 15 new companies had their shares registered for the first time on the exchange in 1976. The sbareo registered for the first time on the exchange in 1978. The previous year only four new companies were listed. Two new members were also accepted by the exchange to join the existing representatives on the floor. In the near inture trading will be expanded to a third hall and it will speed up transactions and the adminietration connected with the trading. The present stock exchange will be moved to its new quarters on Rehov Ahad Ha'am by the end of 1981, according to the chairman.

Dr. Heth conceded that in the area of communications the exchange continues to lag. "If we could install terminals to the banks and brokers we could then institute continuous

"The delays involved are con-nected with the inability to get the necessary equipment delivered to the users," he explained. The recent instability in market behaviour was sxplained by him as resulting from the high inflationary pressures and the uncertainties in the level of the onsumer-price index, from month to month. Dr. Heth is hopeful that as a result of the linking of development loans more and more companies will turn to the exchange to meet their financial needs. "It should also result in more rational and selective new investments," he elaborated.

Texas group drops bid for bank

By SHLOMO MAOZ Post Economic Reporter

Robert Hocht of Houston, Texas. has withdrawn his appeal to the Higb Court of Justice against sale of vernment shares in the Maritime Bank to the Shaul Eisenberg group.

The suit was eancelled on Friday, and the case was than closed. Financs Minister Simha Ehrlich has already renewed his request to the Knesset Finance Committee to approve the sale to Eisenberg, and a decision wil probably be taken this

In a long document submitted to the court, Government Corporations Authority director Ephraim Yermans explained the state'e preference of the Eisenberg group over Hecht in the bank sale. He asserted thet Hecht'e representative who had approached the govern-ment had not revealed whom be represented, deepitc the government's demand. When he finally did identify himself, Yermans wrote, Hecht still failed to reveal who size etood behind his bld.

Yermans also wrote that at a critical stage, Hecht's bid was made in Israel pounds, unlinked, making t inadvisable to negotiate with his offer, compared to all the other ones submitted. Nor had Hecht and his group demonstrated their ability to run a bank and contribute to the cconomy, said Yermans, and be bad submitted no bank references.

The $11.55m. figure quoted by Hecht was mentioned only after the decision to sell to Eisenberg had already been made, Yermans ex-

New firm to sell sodamaker

By AARON SITTNER Jarusalem Post Reporter

A new firm on the local scene -Sodastream Ltd. of Jerusalem will epend approximately ILim. in the coming 12 months to advertise and promote sales for its sole product, the Sodaetream bome beverage maker.

The 1L1.850 "package", to be retailed by franchise shops, was shown to reporters and retailers at a demonstration last week. Heart of the drink-maker set is a plastic coated metal carbonator which converts ordinary cooled water into a bottle of soda.

The eoda can then be flavoured with eyrup or equasb and Sodastream's own syrups will be pushed hard as a "natural partner" for the eodá-maker. Unliks the machine, which is British-mads, the eyrups are manufactured locally, at Kiryat Bialik. So far, 10 flavours are available. The gas cylinder accompanying the machine euffices for 100 to 150 bottles of beverage, and gas refille are now priced at IL36. Besidee the carbonating machine and gae cylinder, the set includes two pumps for the 700 ml. bottles of Sodastream eyrup, six beverage bottles and elx caps for them.

Exploiting the Chief of Staff

PRIME MINISTER Begin has been reported to be consulting with the Attorney General on the guidelines to be forwarded to the Chlef of Staff in the preparation of his deposition to the High Court of Justice in the Eilon Moreh case. The temporary injunction Issued by the court halting work at that Gush Emunim settlement outside of Nablus is to be followed by a "sbow-case" hearing at which the government will explain its case.

The government is certainly entitled to try to put the best face It can muster on its settlement policy and the security rationale it has adduced in its support. But there is a danger in involving the army and the Chlef of Staff eo deeply in what is a hotiy contested polltical issue.

By consultation with Ray Aluf Eltan on what Mr. Begin would like him to say and in the exact words that would prove most efficacious for the government's case, the public's trust in the credibility of the army's bigh command is in danger of ero-

It is no secret that Ray Aluf Eitan truly believes that all the territorlee should be retained by Israel permanently for security reasons. Arguing for the seizure of the Arah lands at Rujeib falls in easily with such a point of view. The military has not been asked for its professional opinion on the autonomy plan, as it was not asked regarding Mr. Begin's decision at Camp David to cede the Rafia Salient, the Sharm es-Sheikh naval base and the military airfields in Sinai to Egypt as part of the peace treaty.

The security aspects of Israel's policies in the territories are undenlably among the thorniest issues to confront Israel today. They should be fully dehated by the politicians, the press and public opinion, taking into account the various opinions of military experts. But it would be healthier for Israel's body politic and for the army, if military men on active service were not pushed into open partiolpation in that debate.

Politics vs the law

LABOUR governments, beginning with David Ben-Gurion and ending with Yitzhak Rahin, consclously flouted the Military Conscription Law for 24 years by failing to implement the clause calling for alternative national service for women who opt out of 'military service on religious grounds.

The Begin government continued this fallure to carry out the dictates of the law, under pressure, as in the past, from Agudat

But several months ago, a former Likud MK, Yedidya Be'eri, a father of two army age daughters, applied to the High Court for an injunction against the government to show cause why it should not end discrimination against his daughters by implementing the law in full.

The court Issued the injunction and the Attorney General was compelled to promise that the government would come up with a solution within four months.

Mr. Begin and the cabinet have now proposed that "solution." Its genius-like simplicity raises the question why Labour ministers never thought of it in their 24 years of wrestling with their consciences and Aguda pressures. Quite simple. The government is propusing an american to the law stipulating that the clause on alternative national service will be put into effect only in the wake of a specific cabinet decision.

Would it be nalve to add that no timetable is given for that "specific cabinet decision?"

The record of the Begin government's submission to Agudat Yisrael on a long list of issues has removed any element of surprise from Its latest action. What continues to astonish, nowever, is that these acts come from a party - Herut - that has always prided itself on being second to none in its adoration and nive at anything connected with the Israel Defence Forces.

Over half of Israel's young women do not serve in the army. or in any alternative national service. Many of these are draft dodgere, whose chenting and lying has been legitimized by Mr. Begin's coalition agreement with the Aguda.

The pragmatists in the General Staff, including today's Minister of Defence, Mr. Weizman, have always excused the situation with the argument that the army does not really need all the 18-year-old women. That is true, but the country's understaffed hospitals, schools, kindergartens and community confice, where alternative national service was supposed to be catried uut, are crying out for additional people.

The pragmntists and cynics should not be surprised if these latest legalistic shenanlgans drive more of Israel's best and most devoted young women into anti-conscription actions until

Ban the bottles

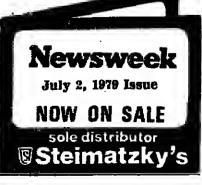

PHOPLE HAVE been injured before - some blinded - by exmidding bottles of soft drinks. Now the life of a young mother of three ies been sacrificed to the Moloch of chenp, backward in Israel, the bottles are returnable, to save on cost. The i - ani Standards Institute eays it is belpices, because reusable buttles can be knocked about in transit so that the glass eligibility tempered to adequate tolerances — may be weakened in interescopic crncke so that it can no longer contain the assure of the gasified liquids.

But thie is a hollow argument. Technology has found an miswer to more difficult problems than this one. There are safeby cases that give long before the bottle Itself can be blown to Licens, and bottlee can be coated so that flying glass fragments ate centained.

If there ie a danger in the bottles now in use, it must be asked why their distribution is still permitted?

it is not only the producers wbo are responsible. The death of Famar Hallba points up the inattention, by the authorities, to harards and environmental dangers in a wide area. The intest tragic accident should, at least, jolt them into taking action. There should be a ban on the marketing of unsafe bottles until thorough tests prove that the dangers have been complete-

Getting ready for a showdown

ALLEN E. SHAPIRO analyses the merger between the Labour-affiliated kibbutz movements in terms of its political repercussions.

POLITICS is what the new kibbutz merger is all about. The immediate aim is to add muscle to the Labour Party, as the time approaches for a show-down over its leadership.

The kibbuts movement has more power within Labour now that the party is in opposition than it did when it was in power. The unitary structure of Israell government means that when a party is not part of the governing coalition, it has to fall back primarily on nongovernmental power bases. With the exception of the municipalities, there is no other place to go. For Labour, this means the Histadrut and the labour-oriented settlement

The kibbutz brings to politics the advantages of material resources and dedicated manpower, both of which can be mobilized for party purposes. The major result of the new kibbutz merger will be to im-prove the organization behind the political effor

It is in the field of organization that the only major internal kibbutz change has occurred as a result of the merger, and then only in the old Mapai-oriented Ihud Hakvutzot Vehakibbutzim. This is in the direction of a clear declaration of identification with the Labour Party, to which, in the language of the Ihud'e new statement of principles, "the decisive majority of mambers of the movement belong and which is the primary vehicle of the Labour Movement's mission "The ovement's mission." The new platform provides that in party matters "the party forum will decide together with a suitable movement institution."

This puts an end to the distinction for the Ihud between political party lesuee and klbbutz movement queetions, which was a major product of the split in the kibbutz movement in the early 1950's, out of which the Ikud was born. In this, the Ihud reacted differently from the Kibbutz Meuhad to the trauma of the

For the Klbbutz Hameubad, "never again" meant a flat ban within the kibbutz on factional organization that might develop into a new break-away movement, For the Ihnd, it meant isolating political from movement activity, through autonomoue organizational channels, thus neutralizing the consequences of political differences on movement

The Ihud formula survived the test of the Lavon Affair. Lavon'e Minbayesod group broke with Mapai, but remained within the porters, organized in Raff, which returned to the party fold only after the Six Day War and the creation of the Labour Party. The most recent strain on Ibud unity, Yadin's Democratic Movement for Change, achieved wide support in kibbutzim of the Ihud without causing splits either in the kibbutzim or in the movement But this neutralizing of politics means to present Ihud leadership a neutralizing, even a sterilizing, of power as well, and they are out to mobilize as much as they can. Therefore, they are prepared to take a calculated risk.

Essentially, they are gambling on the basle of a conviction that political splits within the labour eamp are a thing of the past and that the movement can take the added beat of internal political controversy without melting at the ideological

THEY MAY NOT bave long to wait before that conviction meets its first teet. The iseue - the kibbntz leadership's strong line on the Golan

The Kibbutz Hamsuhad, unencumbered by the inconvenience of serious factional dissent, has come out for virtual annexation. The Ihnd. at its recent convention, beld back a tion for Internal opposition that ranges from supporters of territorial compromise on all fronts, including the Golan, to Peace Now activists, who are likely to find political life in the new united movement increasingly uncomfortable.

A foretaste was provided even before the new merger. After Camp David, a joint meeting was called of the Ihud's Mercaz, a kibbutz movement institution, and of the Ihud's Labour Party Council, an out-andout party Forum. The purpose - to determine the vote of thud Knesset members on the ratification of the agreements and the withdrawal from the Sinai settlements.

This mixing of movement and party Institutions brought a wave of protest. Non-party members of Ihud kibbutzim were being reduced to second-class citizens. Ibud Secretary-General Mussa Harif apologized, asserting that the pressure of time prevented the convening of separate assemblies.

But the real pressure came then, and will come in the immediate future as well, from the logic of events. The major political issue of our time is also an issue that goes to the heart of the kibbutz movement the question of settlsments. Party be kept in separate compartments. it is argued, when history has forced them to combine.

It is this combination that makes the Golan Heights a convenient issue on which to push the kibbuts leadership's campaign within the Labour Party. It is also an appealing issue in bidding for popular support beyond Labour's ranks. It reaches a constituency generally unsympathetic to the kibbutz and all it traditionally stands for.

THE PUBLIC image of the kibbutz is very much on the minds of movement leaders. Inevitably, a raised political profile on the national scene will provoke a response. As election time draws nearer, it eeems reasonabic to anticipate Likudsponsored state intervention to curb kibbuts political activity, such as the volunteering of kibbutz personnel or resources for party purposes. The issue surfaced briefly at the tail-endof the municipal elections eampaign and resulted in an inconclusive stand-off in the courts. A tightening of legal restrictions, perbaps through amendment of existing party campaign financing legislation, could bring the issue to a bead.

Similarly, there might be a demand for increased supervision of the economic activities of the kibbutz eector, if the climate of public opinion was prepared to accept it. The only hint in this direction, the Finance Ministry committee that examined bow the kibbutzim pay their taxes, misfired from the Likud's point of view and resulted in a clean bill of bealth for the kibbutzim.

But suppose that in the at-mosphere of approaching elections, there were charges that mutual aid funds of the kibbuiz movement were serving as funnels for the mobilization of political funds. It could justify, at the very least, supervision by an appropriate public body, such as the Bank of Israel'e Conptroller of Banks, for example, over kibbutz financial institutions...

The hands-off treatment of the kibbutz economic sector may be due for a change in any case. This may be one consequence of the rise of Herut populism, personified by Housing Minister David Levy. It was in Levy's Belt-Shean that Likud leaders reportedly shepherded busloads of development-town voters around the regional enterprises of the cooperative settlements, promis-ing that after the Histadrut elections they would be divided among the

A STATE FOR THE PALESTINIANS?

READERS' LETTERS

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir. - The constant drumbeat by the Paicetlnlane for tbelr "legitimate rights" makee me furious. First off, they never speli out what they mean by that term. If anyone bas ever denied them their 'legitimate rights,' the guilty party is not Israel, but the Arab world ltself. It was the Arab Higher Com-mittee whieb orcbeetrated their refusal to accept the UN'e Partition Resolution of November 29, 1947, which would have given them a state of their own. The Palestinian cry for statebood was muted when the Jordanians ruled over them on the West Bank and when the Egyptians ruled Gaza with an iron hand. For 19 years, the Arab "brothers," the Jordanlans, bold eway over the Palestinians and during that time there was no mention of their

"legitimate rights."
The queetion arisee in my mind: do the Palestinians, given their record of the past 31 years, deserve statehood? They merely mouth such phrases as "self-determination," or "legitimate" rights," or "human rights," all of which are covers for organizations whose only purpose is the extermination of Israel and her people. Let those who don't believe the Arabs are capable of genocide remember there were people who never could believe such "cultured" people as the Germans were capable of genocide. We know better today. The Palestinians have helped to fasten upon the Iranian people the despotism of the Ayatolla Khomeini. They have aided the self-confessed disciple of Hitler, Idi Amin, in his cruel administration of murder. They ignore the pleas of the Kurds for autonomy. They fight against the Lebancee Christians who granted them asylum from the onslaught of King Hussein. They engage in a cowardly war against civilians including women and children.

A state for the Palestinians? Let Jordan or Syria give them one. Of all those who clamour for a state of their own, the Falestinians are the least deserving. IRVING SCHECHTMAN West Paim Beach, Florida.

OPPOSITION PROMISES

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, - After reading Harry Hurwitz's words of praise for Canada'e decision to move its embassy to Jerusalem as a "rare and refreshing development" (June 10), It occurred to me that we could look closer to bome for instances of honesty - or the lack thereof. It le certainly true, Mr. Hurwitz, that there are but few occasions when "a party in office actually stands by promises made while it was in Opposition." Two items comc to mind concerning the Likud party platform and the resolutions of its main component, Herut. The first,

INFLATION IN ISRAEL To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post ly, one can die of it. Inflation, in this

Sir, - We found ourselves rubbing our eyes in amazement over Shlomo Maoz's article of May 31. For some of his statements were truly startiing. Thus "Fixed inflation is a good thing. It means full employment, built-in economic growth, and a ris-ing standard of living." Well, Britain has bad something very close indeed to fixed inflation, around the nine per cent mark for well over a year, and there is considerable unemployment, next to no economic growth and a static or possibly declining standard of living.

Mr. Maoz declares: "On the personal level, buy whatever you need. Tomorrow the price will be higher," and he adds: "Run out and buy some durable goods. How about a colour TV set?" In the short run, this may make some sort of spurious (but selfish) sense; in the long term, it is sheer madness. Increased consumer spending of the kind which Mr. Maox advocates will give a further hoist to inflation, increase Israel'e already alarming trade deficit, and defeat the admirable efforts of Israel's planners, mannfacturers and calesmen to close the external trade gap hy increasing exports. One could pick out, or pick on, plenty of other fallacles in Mr. Maoz's article. May we mention just one? He seems to have no understan-ding whatever of the appalling psy-ehological dangers of inflation. Of course, one can "live" with it; equal-

MEAGRE PENSIONS working man receives 40 per cent.If

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir. - I have read Joshua Brilliant's article, "200,000 get-new pension plan" (Junc 5). If I have calculated correctly, "... a month's wages for every year they worked" mcans that, after 30 years' work, a man gets 30 months' salary - i.s. less than 3 years (plus premiums earned). This hardly seems a fair recompense for 30 years' work.

This eeems to be in line with the grudging benefits accorded by the Histadrut to subscribers to its Mivtahim fund. The widow of a pensioner receives 42 per cent of his salary (60 per cent of the 70 per cent which he received); the widow of a

LEADERSHIP To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post

Sir, - I have just read your editorial of May 31, "U.S. policy discrepancy." If you people have a hard time comprehending Mr. Carter's statements because they are contradictory, try it on a daily basis on every subject. The people in the United States are so confused by this man they don't know what be is do-

In point of fact, we have become a joke in the world because of our lack of wisdom in picking leaders. Too bad we cannot bave a Begin here. You are fortunate to bave the ieaders you have. At least they have the guts to take a stand. We could use that in the United States.

punch, the more likely the application of countervailing power. The more effective kibbutz political activity, the harder it is likely to be hit. The kibbutz leadership's expectation of political attack - itself a major motive behind the new merger may, therefore, prove to be a self-fulfilling prophecy.

But the immediate political payoffs of the kibbutz merger will be in terms of power within Labour Party councils. Assuming a Peres-Rabin standoff, there will be a chance for the kibbutz movement to make its weight felt in the choice of personalities, including the one at the top. He would almost certainly have to be acceptable to the united kildler movement. It is not beyond the realm of reason that be would emerge from its ranks.

Mussa Harif, the young thud Sccretary-General, projects a Kennedy-type image, with plenty of political sex sppeal. He is untainted as is the verteran leadership of the Kibbutz Hameuhad, by past fac tional controversies. There are those who have looked Mussa Harif straight in the cye and claim to have discerned a tell-tale glint.
